An extension of several What's Up February 2017 stories

As children, it is sometimes hard to know what a day in the life of someone else might be like. But, you can have fun imagining what people might typically do.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Divide your class into ten groups with every group having about the same number of students.
2. Pick one of the following for each group, with no two groups getting the same individual. You can do this either on a first-come-first-served basis or by drawing lots.

GROUP 1	GROUP 2	GROUP 3	GROUP 4	GROUP 5

GROUP 6	GROUP 7	GROUP 8	GROUP 9	GROUP 10

3. As a group, read the story that your group's person appears in. The stories are all in the February 2017 issue of What's Up. The story will not tell you what the person does on a typical day. Instead, use your imagination to prepare a five-minute oral presentation titled "A day in the life of ___".
4. Take turns to share your group presentations with the whole class. Then, reflect on what this experience in imagining was like for you.
