More connected than ever before.	Have to paddle boats, catch fish and work alongside their families from a young age.
Engage in cultural exchanges.	The Dakota Access pipeline passes through their reservation, threatens their water supply and traditional way of life.
Believe the Ganges cleanses them physically, mentally and spiritually.	Must complete nine years of schooling.
Complain about homework and tests.	Wayang kulit is their story telling tradition using shadow puppets.
Often do not get a chance to go to school.	Perform penance to express repentance.
Are remarkably resilient and curious.	Family is the centre of social life.
