No More Poaching, Please!

An activity of "Alba the albino orangutan returns to the wild"

Read "Alba the albino orangutan returns to the wild" (page 15, What's Up January 2019). Bornean orangutans like Alba and Kika are endangered. They need your help. One of the greatest dangers they face is poachers.

Imagine you are on a school trip to Borneo. You and your friends are invited to meet a class in a Bornean kindergarten. You are asked to teach the kids about the ills of poaching. You can perform a skit, song, or find any creative way of engaging your very young audience.

Get into groups of three or four.

1. Discuss what you want the Bornean children to take away from your lesson.
2. Discuss how you want to present it.
3. Write and rehearse.
4. Present to your class as if it were the kindergarten class in Borneo!

Use this space for your group's key discussion points about the lesson.
