

Let's Explore Warli Tribal Art

An activity of "What Inspired Our Ancestors to Paint Animals?"

Warli Tribal Art is one of the oldest forms of art in history. The Warli tribes use simple forms to make their art. Their paintings depict daily activities such as dancing, hunting, farming, gathering, and are usually painted on their mud walls. You can find out more about Warli art here: <https://youtu.be/9YQmgYBz8k8>

- 1) Watch the following video to learn how to do it: <https://youtu.be/cfr9dzexxx0>
- 2) The Warli use circles, triangles, and squares in their art. From the video, copy the way the Warli people drew different objects in the chart below.
- 3) Try to emulate their art. Draw a few everyday objects of your own using circles, triangles, and squares.

People	Man

Animals	Horse

Plants	Plant 1

Borders	Border 1

My Own Warli	Pencil

- 4) Write a short paragraph narrating a typical day in your life. Include your daily activities, significant items you use, people you meet, and so on.

- 5) Depict your typical day using the Warli Tribal Art style. You can draw in pencil below. For a more authentic Warli effect, try using a white gel pen or even a correction pen on a reddish brown or black piece of paper. Have fun!

A Scene from My Typical Day

