

Money Can't Buy Happiness

An activity of "Unhappy princesses"

In "Unhappy princesses" (page 18–19, What's Up, April 2021), we read about two real-life princesses who face many struggles despite being very rich. This is a good example of the quote "Money can't buy happiness". So, what does make us happy? Complete this activity to explore your sources of happiness.

1. Here are some happiness prompts. Fill in the blanks.

A person who makes me happy is

_____.

My favourite food/activity/hobby is

_____.

A problem that I am happy to have overcome is

_____.

My favourite memory of being happy is

_____.

A recent achievement I am happy about is

_____.

Something I am looking forward to because it will make me happy is

_____.

2. Pick one of the above and write a short composition about it.

3. Draw one or two pictures to illustrate your composition.

4. Share your illustrated composition with your class.
