Our Food Star Award

An activity of “Michelin and the hunt for fancy food”.

Read “Michelin and the hunt for fancy food” (page 18, What’s Up September 2025). If you could give a star to any food stall or restaurant in Singapore, which would you choose and why? Work in pairs to select your very own Food Star winner.

1. Watch this video:

Hawker sells cheap healthy food to feed her neighbourhood's needy | On the Red Dot - Secret Heroes

2. Reflect on these questions together.

- Would you eat at the stall featured in the video? Why or why not?
- Does cheap food mean it is of lower quality? Explain your answer.
- Should awards celebrate food only for the wealthy? What about affordable food that feeds communities?

3. Brainstorm about stalls or types of food that deserve recognition but may be overlooked.

4. Design a new food award that is fair, inclusive, and celebrates what really matters to the two of you.

- Give the award a name. (E.g. Food Star Award, The People’s Plate, Heart Bowl, etc).
- Decide on the criteria for winning the award (e.g. affordability, taste, heritage, popularity, community value, pricing, etc).
- Sketch a logo or symbol for the award (e.g. a spoon, rice bowl, wok, etc).
- Explain why the award exists.
- Choose one or two nominees for the award and highlight specific dishes they serve.
- Write a sentence or two explaining why they deserve the award.

You may use the organiser on the next page to help you.

5. Optional: You may select a winner and present a handmade award certificate to them.
